

Holiday in Kerry

There are many great things to do in beautiful surroundings in County Kerry in the Southwest of Ireland. One popular activity is kayaking across the stunning lakes of Killarney. This is a great way to see the beautiful landscape, islands and inlets of one of the most picturesque places in Kerry [1]. The lakes are situated at the feet of Carrauntoohil in the McGillycuddy's Reeks, the highest mountain in Ireland [2, 3].

For those who love adventure, surfing is a great activity available in Kerry. There are plenty of places to surf in Kerry, whether you're a beginner or an experienced surfer [4].

Ballybunion is one of the best places to surf in Kerry, and you can also enjoy a walk or a swim on the beach [5]. If you have time to relax why not try a soothing seaweed bath, these are believed to have many health benefits due to the high mineral content of the seaweed.

If you're interested in marine life, a visit to Dingle Bay is a must. The Dingle Aquarium is the largest in Ireland and is home to a diverse collection of sea creatures, including sharks, penguins, otters, and many species of fish [6]. Additionally, there is a boat tour of Dingle Bay that allows you to see dolphins, whales, and puffins in their natural habitat [7].

Another popular activity in Kerry is hiking. Kerry is home to some of the most stunning hikes in Ireland, with spectacular views of the countryside and coastlines. The most famous hike in Kerry is the Ring of Kerry, a 179-kilometer route that takes you around the coast of the Iveragh Peninsula. The hike is full of breath-taking scenery and for those who love music, there are plenty of traditional Irish music sessions to enjoy in local pubs. Immerse yourself in the lively atmosphere and listen to talented musicians play traditional Irish music.

Kerry is a fantastic holiday destination that offers something for everyone. Whether you want to kayak across stunning lakes, catch some waves, see sea creatures up close, hike the Ring of Kerry or listen to traditional Irish music, there are many great activities to enjoy in this beautiful region. Make sure to plan your trip to Kerry and experience all that it has to offer!
